Important notes

Check My Trip

For up to date information about your flight status and departure times, all you need to do is click on the link below and view the full details of your trip online. You can use Check My Trip any time on your desktop, tablet or mobile device.

Schedule changes

Airlines sometimes change flight details. We will make every effort to advise you if this is the case, however we strongly recommend you reconfirm your flight times using the links in the Check My Trip section, or check with the airline one day prior to departure.

Wot to take to the airport

Page 1 of this PDF is your e-ticket so take it along with your photo ID to check in.

If you are flying internationally you will require a valid passport to travel. You also need to ensure that your passport is valid for at least six months after your date of return. Some passport holders may also require a visa (even when transiting). It is your responsibility to check all passport and visa requirements. A helpful website about visas is www.visalink.com.au.

ID for domestic travel can be a passport or valid Australian driver's licence. Children travelling with an adult don't need their own ID (unless they are travelling overseas, when they'll need their own passport as ID).

Baggage allowance

Baggage limits vary with each airline and each ticket, so you should refer to page 2 of this PDF for the correct baggage limits. You can also double check your baggage allowance using Check My Trip.

Each airline has different baggage policies, so to purchase additional baggage you will need to contact the airline directly or visit their website. It's important to remember that airlines may charge a fee for excess baggage at check-in, so don't forget to check with the airline before you fly. For more information, you can check out our very handy baggage guide.

When to arrive at the airport

Important: for security reasons, many airlines require that any electronic or battery operated devices can be powered-on prior to departure. We strongly advise you to ensure the batteries on all electronic devices are charged prior to arriving at the airport so their function can be demonstrated to airline staff during check-in. This includes having enough battery life on your phone, laptop, tablet or computer to show they operate for their intended use.

Failure to demonstrate that your electronic devices can be powered-on when checking in for your flights may result in you being denied boarding, unless those items are left behind. This policy is outside the control of wotif.com, and we cannot take any responsibility in the event the airline denies you boarding or confiscates electronic equipment due to these restrictions.

Check-in generally closes 30-90 minutes prior to a flight's departure, depending on the airline and destination. To save time, visit Check My Trip to see if the airline permits online check-in on your booking.

For all international journeys, please arrive at the airport at least 2 hours prior to check in. If you're flying from the domestic terminal, we recommend that you arrive at least an hour before your departure to ensure you have adequate time to complete check-in and the necessary security checks.

Cancellations and amendments

This depends on the airfare you have purchased, as different fares have different restrictions for cancellations or changes. While some are flexible and can be changed or cancelled, others have strict guidelines around the deadlines and fees that apply for making any changes. We suggest you check out the rules for your booking by clicking on the fare rules link in your itinerary above, as well as the fees and charges that will apply to any changes.

Changes can't be processed online, so if you decide to request a change to your booking please email us at flights@wotif.com. Or if you're departing in the next 7 days, call us.
